GOOD AND BAD TEST TASK

Each team member must prepare test task (minimum one per member) for his/her features. You can refer and rephrase the problem statements that you have created in Assignment 1 as the task. But you will need to include all the necessary data that the participants will be required to enter to complete the task. E.g. of a scenario as follows: (These are the scenarios used during the usability testing of a library website.)

Task 1:

Good Example

Your friend was informed by her doctor that she should lose about 15 lbs. Use the web to find some helpful, credible, tips or diets she might want to stick to.

Poor Example

Your friend, Ima Eater, is looking for a good diet. Help her find some possibilities.

Task 2:

Good Example

An author asked you to tell him what you think of his draft article, "Trial By Fire." Make some edits in the document.

Poor Example

Open the "Trial By Fire" MS Word document. Go to the area to make comments for the author. Tell him what you think of the first paragraph. Tell him what you think of the fourth paragraph.

Task 3:

Good Example

Make a recommendation to the Library to purchase the book, Application Usability Design (Author: Peter R. Boyce) and make this good resource available to the all the students.

Poor Example

Recommend Library to buy a book and make it available to everyone.
